Q4 Some people have begun renting their car with another person on a short-term basis for payment. Though this action is legal and the transaction fully insured, Salt Lake City police have cited car owners with fines if the car is transferred at the airport. The airport claims that all business activity at the airport must be carried out with a permit issued by the airport itself, just like with traditional rental car companies. On the other hand, car sharing proponents say that car sharing is no different than someone simply picking up a friend from the airport and that they aren't a rental car company.
